We must not cease from exploration; the end of all our exploring will be to arrive where we began and to know the place for the first time. — T. S. Eliot

A tidy father. A messy bedroom. And a determined teenage daughter. These ingredients spawned a grass-roots charity run by a 17-year-old girl who is donating 400 backpacks stuffed with notebooks, Pokémon folders and pencil boxes to needy kids. Winnie Kao's 'Packs of Love' began in spring 2002 when her father lectured her about the mounds of school supplies cluttering her room and about how privileged she was to have all that stuff. Her Dad's message stuck and she took it a step further -- she decided to give back to those who weren't as fortunate as her.

Be The Change:

Take a lesson and turn it into an opportunity of service.
