We have to create a new synthesis where the environmental movement, the spiritual movement, and the social movement come together. We need to create a new trinity--soil, soul, and society. Soil represents the natural world. Unless we take care of the earth, we cannot take care of society. We also need to take care of the soul. Unless weâ€™re able to seek fulfillment and joy, we wonâ€™t find peace--no matter how much money we accumulate. And then thereâ€™s social justice, which includes concern for the old, the sick, the poor, and people of different races. --Satish Kumar
