

daily GOOD

Let us realize that the privilege to work is a gift, that power to work is a blessing, that love of work is success. --David O. McKay

Lottery Vs. Work

Lottery winners, trust-fund babies and others who get their money without working for it do not get as much satisfaction from their cash as those who earn it, a study of the pleasure center in people's brains suggests. Emory University researchers also noted that "there's substantial evidence that people who win the lottery are not happier a year after they win the lottery."

Be The Change:

Share this research with someone who plays the lotto regularly. :)