

daily GOOD

Education is for improving the lives of others and for leaving your community and world better than you found it. --Marian Wright Edelman

The Best Education Money Can't Buy

Berea College, founded 150 years ago to educate freed slaves and "poor white mountaineers," accepts only applicants from low-income families, and it charges no tuition. "You can literally come to Berea with nothing but what you can carry, and graduate debt free," said Joseph P. Bagnoli Jr., the associate provost for enrollment management. "We call it the best education money can't buy."

Be The Change:

Is there an education you've received that money couldn't have bought? Share responses here.