

daily GOOD

Sadly, there are more wild horses in holding pens than in the wild.
--Willie Nelson

For Love of Wild Horses

Wildlife biologist, Craig Downer's, childhood experience with his trusted horse, Poco, and their many adventures in the wild lands of Nevada, led to a lifetime of passionate advocacy for the protection of wild horses and burros in the Western United States. His is often a lonely struggle between raising consciousness about the long term ecological benefits these animals bring and the forces more concerned with short term benefits. The interview, both heart-breaking and inspiring, will give you a new understanding of an issue that needs far more attention...

Be The Change:

Learn more about Craig Downer's work through his website.