If you look the right way, you can see that the whole world is a garden.
--Frances Hodgson Burnett

The Constant Gardener

The garden is a space defined not by its physicality but by the emotions it evokes and the connections it provokes. And the act of gardening can change the way we relate to the world around us for the better, giving us perspective and teaching us lessons about life. Our souls are gardens. Our hearts are flowers. They need to be watered, tended, fertilized and loved. Happy gardening!

Be The Change:

Choose to plant seeds of love. Fertilize harmony. Water the connections, the underground network where our hearts speak to one another.
